PROFILE

I, Amai T.D Ngulube, am a Bachelor of Laws (LLB) student at the University of Pretoria with a growing foundation in law, media, marketing, and public discourse. My academic journey and professional experiences have allowed me to develop strong analytical, communication, and research skills, alongside a deep appreciation for the role law plays in shaping society and creating meaningful impact.

Beyond my legal studies, I have built practical experience through editorial, administrative, and leadership roles in both professional and student-led environments. My work with PDBY Media, the National Prosecuting Authority, and various university organisations, including BLASC, UNICEF and UNASA UP, have strengthened my ability to communicate effectively, think critically, manage responsibilities under pressure, and collaborate with diverse teams.

My background in media and public communication has also given me valuable experience in research, editorial writing, digital communication, and audience engagement. These experiences continue to shape my approach to leadership, problem-solving, and ethical decision-making.

Alongside my studies, I have completed certifications in financial accounting, international law, political science, artificial intelligence, cybersecurity, cloud infrastructure, and project management. These multidisciplinary interests reflect my commitment to continuous learning and adapting to an evolving professional landscape.

I am literate in multiple South African languages, including English, Afrikaans, and Sepedi, and able to speak basic Southern Sotho, isiZulu, and TshiVenda, which has strengthened my ability to connect with people from diverse backgrounds and engage in meaningful dialogue across different communities.

EXPERIENCE

July 2025 & July 2026

National Prosecuting Authority Vacation Work
Pretoria South Africa

Responsibilities: assisting in daily operations. Supporting day-to-day operations in various departments. Running errands and handling routine tasks

June 2025

Commercial Law Training
Bowmans

I completed a commercial law training under Bowmans Law firm which involved advising various hypothetical clients on complex commercial law topics. This included researching and drafting memos regarding a client exchanging assets for a loan and determined any risks or concerns related to the transfer of these assets. Furthermore I practised initiating a claim for a client, including preparing summons and determining jurisdiction. I also analysed a potential acquisition to determine legality and its effect on the market and provided advice to the client on potential negative public interest concerns.

December 2025

Doha Debates Ambassador
Doha Debates

I've had the honour of being part of a network of young leaders who participate in a virtual fully funded fellowship focused on transforming public discourse through Majlis-style dialogue, developing skills and critical thinking, cross cultural communication and systems thinking to discuss complex global issues and bold inclusive solutions.

August 2025 – current

PDBY Media Section Editor (Promoted from 2024 position)
University of Pretoria Student Newspaper

Responsibilities: as an editor at the PDBY I am responsible for researching and verifying information, monitoring current affairs and communicating developments to the public in a year and accessible manner. The rules strengthened my analytical and critical thinking skills, hold my ability to write and concisely persuasively for diverse audiences and reinforced the importance of accuracy, credibility and ethical standards, all of which are directly transferable to the legal profession.
